

The main bottleneck is the fact that buffer capacity is fixed at 256 bytes. So as you increase the file size, you need to take more chunks, which takes more time. It's approximately linear because each chunk takes roughly the same amount of time to compute.